A Word About GOSSIP

WHO ARE the greater gossips? Men or women? Don't try to answer You can't

The fact is that nearly all grown people are gossips. Men are right when they say that all women are gossips, and women are equally right when they retort that there is as much gossip in the smoking car, the billiard room and the business office

The one thing that people can never know enough about is what other people are saying, what they are doing and how they got the way they are

And why not? Human nature is the same every where and probably will be as long as this old world lasts. Everyone is seeking news, men as well as women, for they are poor specimens of humanity that betray no interest in their fellow man

That is what makes the value of a newspaper. It gives the news and gives it straight. As accurately as it can be found out. When a mistake occurs, it can always be corrected in the paper. That is why you get your news from your local paper

Immigration And The City Worker

The skilled artisan, the factory laborer, the store clerk and office employee on comparatively small salaries, are generally speaking, opposed to any policy of immigration at all calculated to meet the admitted need of this country for a larger population. If only a superficial study is given to this whole subject, the opposition of these classes to the bringing in of tens of thousands of new workers is not surprising. The trouble is that most people are content with a superficial study, and will not even listen to those who have delved deeply into the problem.

A glance back over Canada's history establishes the fact beyond all possibility of dispute that the most prosperous period of the Dominion's life embraces those years between the outbreak of war in 1914. We disregard the war years because the industrial activity and prosperity of those hectic years were the result of war's demands and was not founded on any permanent or sound economic basis.

What caused the great activity and prosperity of the decade and a half following 1914 during which unemployment was unknown, and the chief problem lay in obtaining workers to run out supplies of all kinds fast enough to meet the demand? What was it that led manufacturers to build larger additions to their plants, to build new factories, and to increase their permanent payrolls with tens of thousands of men? Why was it that during the period under review scores of struggling Western villages grew into towns, and towns which had been a stagnant for long years suddenly developed into busy, modern cities?

Some people will answer: the enormous railway construction which was taking place. But this is only a partial answer. It is necessary to go farther back to obtain the true answer. What made the railway construction necessary? People living in time have the answer. Immigration to Canada had commenced on a scale previously unknown. By land and by water, people poured into the country. Millions of acres of land were brought under cultivation. These people required building materials, farm equipment, and food. In the agricultural belt of the West increased by leaps and bounds, until the marketing season each fall was the signal for great congestion in the cities. The need of railway, and other means of transportation, grew in proportion to the ground awaiting shipment. The Dominion Parliament and Provincial Legislatures were inundated with petitions, transpiring facilities, new state elevators, increased outlets.

It was immigration which made railway construction absolutely necessary. It was immigration which created the demand for more products of every description, and the consequent expansion of factories and the creation of new ones. It was the settlement of hundreds of thousands of immigrants, in various parts of the Dominion, who created the demand for lumber, for iron, for steel, for coal, for power plants, street railways, etc., and built up modern cities like Winnipeg, Regina, Saskatoon, Moose Jaw, Calgary, Lethbridge, and Edmonton.

It was immigration which created the enormous demand for workers during the period in question and sent wages on their upward way. Immigration did not result in unemployment. It created work on a scale previously unknown in Canada. It was increase in population, through immigration, which transformed the sparsely settled North-West Territories into the Prairies of Saskatchewan and Alberta. It was increased population, through immigration, which made possible the extensive telephone systems of the Canadian West. It was a partial immigration that hundreds of isolated districts were enabled to erect schools which previously had been denied to them because of paucity of numbers to support them.

Nobody able and willing to work had employment in those days. But the benefits were unknown. People were happy, contented and prosperous, proud of the land they had won, and their children were getting ahead. In unthinking people today denounce immigration, and oppose the taking of steps to regulate it. They are not thinking of the fact that the development of this untroubled wealth of natural resources because they say will mean increased unemployment, a lowering of wages, and a reversal of the standard of living. This is their theory or contention. It is an unwarranted. It is not borne out by the facts of history. What has been cited regarding Canada during the period 1914 was equally true of the United States during a long period of years when immigration to that country was in full tide.

Canada has now used the policy of keeping immigrants out for a period of years. It has now prevented immigration on a scale previously known, and poverty for all; it has not led to development of the Dominion's resources. Let the artisan, the laborer, the clerk, the man on a small salary continue to make capital out of a period of commercial stagnation, give serious consideration to these things, and not offend common humanity by blaming the cause of their poverty on the shoulders of the immigrants who have made their problems. Instead of opposing immigration, Canada's workers should be among the foremost advocates of a judicious immigration policy. It is for their own as well as their country's interests.

Alberta Ship's Policy

For the first time in the history of the Alberta cooperative poultry marketing service, a contract with the province was shipped out of the province by the marketing service of the Provincial Government with the cooperation of the Dominion Government. The car was shipped to Montreal, and if the experiment is a success other shipments may be made to the eastern market.

But Driven By Airplane

A reasonable bus has been invented for carrying passengers across the ice between the islands and the mainland in Finland. The ice bus has twenty passengers.

It is driven by a large aeroplane which is towed by a cable. The bus has three runners, two abreast and one behind with which the driver is connected. He uses it like a ladder.

America's Neighborly Aid

Guaging the True Measure of a People's Worth

There are some who have condemned and sometimes derided the United States' attitude of aloofness towards European political affairs. But if it is the people in the south has been overzealous in its determination to keep free from entangling alliances, it has not hesitated to come to the aid of the needy in foreign lands when the appeal has been made. In this way it has forged links of friendship between peoples that are more enduring than the ephemeral pacts of diplomats. When the cries of the women and children of the starving Volga Valley were heard around the world, it was the United States which gave most. Other nations did their share, too. The people of Canada with least to spare gave generously. America's record in this connection was one to be proud of. The same readiness to bring succor to the needy has manifested itself on many occasions before and since. The cause of the suffering has made little difference to the nature of the response.

Although not on the same plane as the interest in European distress, the United States has once more demonstrated its kindness of heart towards people in need. The cause of the suffering has made little difference to the nature of the response.

The New York Globe has commended a great benefit performance to secure funds for the sufferers in the Northern Ontario fire. This will be held at the Grand Theatre, New York, on Sunday night. The news paper named is paying all expenses of the entertainment and will forward the gross proceeds immediately to the proper quarters. The Canadian Club of New York is co-operating in ensuring the success of the benefit. The promises to yield good results. Such examples of neighborly sympathy ought not to be unknown. They reveal more accurately the character of a people than the work of a diplomat.

Everywoman's Fund Is Growing

Widespread Interest Taken In Plan For Free Care Of Tubercular Mothers

Dr. George Creelman, former President of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, Ont., addressing the convention of Ontario Women's Institutes at Toronto, referred to the present national debt of Canada, which amounts to $750,000,000, as one of the reasons why the Dominion should have a more vigorous immigration policy.

Dr. Creelman spoke of the work being done by the Canada Colonization Association, which was an organization of business men, started through private profits. The association had been established for the preservation of auto-accident agencies of the things that Governments could not do.

Stopping Letters En Route CANADIAN PACIFIC EXCURSION TO EASTERN CANADA

Under Uncle Sam's revised postal regulations it is the easiest thing in the world for a man to get a letter back after he has mailed it. Under former rules when a letter was dropped in the box it belonged to the person to whom it was addressed and nobody else had anything to say as to its care or disposal. Sometimes a man would mail a letter and half an hour after changed conditions would make him glad to give a leg for its return. Now if the message has not been actually delivered into the hands of the addressee he is in position to claim it. He may even telegraph or telephone the postmaster and have it held up until he can identify himself personally as the sender of the letter. Sometimes the ability to read a message is a handy thing to possess. The post office department is willing to recognize this fact. A man's title to his own signature does not end until it is in the actual possession of the person to whom it was consigned.—The Vancouver Sun.

There are will apply from all stations in Manitoba (Winnipeg and West), Saskatchewan and Alberta to all Eastern Canadian points, and bear a final return limit of three months. Tickets will be first-class and good in standard or tourist sleeping cars on payment of the regular berth charge.

Two fine Canadian Pacific trains leave Winnipeg for the East daily, the "Imperial" at 9:00 a.m. for Ottawa, Montreal, Quebec and points in the Maritime provinces, the "Toronto Express" at 9:00 p.m. for Toronto, Hamilton, London and all central and Western Ontario points.—Advt. R.23

Rheumatism! try Sloan's

Overnight relief. This relief is having money in the bank, and prudent farmers are husbanding their resources in the shape of trees. A prudent may be sure, but with intelligent treatment it can be made to give a good return either in years or in the shape of a good crop. Most, if not all, dead or failing trees should be used for the fireplace or the cooking stove.

Attitude Of France Proves A Barrier To Conference Agreement

London.—The possibility of the four Allied premiers reaching an agreement which will enable the Brussels conference to assemble with any prospect of success seems to hang by an extremely slender thread. As in all previous attempts to settle the reparations problem, the main difficulty lies in French determination to secure penalties or guarantees of a military character for the fulfillment of German obligations.

The new British Government is considered more favourable toward France than the previous administration, but Mr. Bonar Law, in the present conference, has shown himself to be as warmly opposed to any occupation of the Ruhr as was his predecessor, Lloyd George, while the Italian Premier, Mussolini, still an unknown factor in European conferences, also opposes anything except what he terms economic and productive guarantees.

Premier Poincaré asserted that France would demand the occupation of the Ruhr as a fundamental guarantee for any non-payment, and the signing of the French premier's attitude changed the hopeful view of the French delegation to one of gloom.

Fear Loss Of Life

Four Small Fishing Vessels Missing At B.C. Coast

Prince Rupert, B.C.—A score of men are probably drowned and four fishing vessels are given up for lost, following the return to this port of Government and fishing vessels which have been searching for three United States and one Canadian fishing boats long overdue.

Not the slightest trace has been found of the four small craft which put to sea more than two weeks ago, and are long overdue. The weather recently in this vicinity has been such that there is little likelihood that the boats are still afloat. The only hope for the rescue of their crews, which average six men to the boat, lies in the possibility that they have been picked up by some large vessels which have not reported.

The Canadian boat Valorous, and the United States boats Moreagen, Washington and Convention, are the missing boats.

HER HEART SKIPPED EVERY THIRD BEAT

Mrs. James Burleigh, 245 King St. E., Chatham, Ont., writes:—"I think it is my duty to let you know what I have done for me."

I suffered for years with palpitation of the heart, my nerves were very bad, and I could not sleep at night any time. I doctored for over a year, but I got no relief. I was very bad as it skipped every third beat.

I gave up, just at this time, and then my mother advised me to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and my mother had been very relieved by using them when she was very bad with her heart and nerves. I got a box and started to take them, and when I had used it I felt a lot better. I could sleep at night and feel stronger. I continued taking them until I had used the box, and felt better than I had for years.

When I think of my misery and suffering, I went through before I started Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, I feel like letting everyone know what they did for me."

Advocate New Tax Plan

Turnover System of Federal Taxation Suggested By Regina Citizens

Toronto.—The turnover tax as a system of Federal taxation to replace the many forms in vogue to raise revenue, as advocated by C. J. Roake, of Regina, is the latest proposal for the relief of the tax burden by the Citizens Research Bureau. A basis for the application of the turnover tax in connection with a suspension of the income tax might be outlined as follows:

1. Elimination of all the provisions of the present War Revenue Act.
2. Elimination of income tax on corporations' profits.
3. Elimination of any tax on income under $1000, or such other amount as would be considered as a fair minimum cost of living.
4. A surtax graduated on the basis of the absolute ability to pay.
5. The acceptance by the authorities of an advance in lieu of a return where an income is below the taxable minimum.
6. The levy of a uniform percentage upon the turnover or business transactions of every corporation, firm or person. Such tax to be absorbed by each vendor as a business expense.

Expect Big Movement Of Farmers From U. S. To Dominion Next Spring

Ottawa.—Canada will in all probability get an extensive movement of farmers from the United States to the Dominion during the next immigration season, but this movement, for various reasons, will not be so large as might have been expected. In the opinion of Hon. Chas. Stewart, Minister of the Interior, who has returned from Chicago, where he held a series of conferences with Canadian immigration agents stationed in the United States. Thousands of American farmers, discouraged by high overhead costs, due to inflated prices of land which they purchased during the war years, would welcome the chance to locate on cheaper lands in Canada. Mr. Stewart was informed, but these men are faced with great difficulties in disposing of their holdings at prices which would enable them to move across the border. There is also the shortage of money to contend with, which transportation rates on the other side of the border are also said to have the effect of discouraging emigration.

Wage Cut Stands

Reduction Imposed on 35,000 Canadian Railway Employees Remains

Montreal.—An official statement was issued by the Railway Association of Canada to the effect that the cuts imposed on 35,000 railway shippers on Canadian lines on August 16, ranging from five to nine cents an hour, are to remain in force.

Representatives of the railways and the shippers went into conference here last Monday concerning these reductions, against which the union were at first bitterly opposed. The result of the week's deliberations is contained in the following official statement:

"An agreement has been concluded between the Railway Association of Canada and the Canadian Railway Employees' Department of the American Federation of Labor, covering the continuance of rates paid employees in shop crafts since August 16."

GRAND CHAMPION SHROPSHIRE RAM GOES TO ALBERTA

RANCH

Chicago.—Real quarters await the grand champion Shropshire ram of the 23rd annual International Livestock exhibit.

Following the purchase of the princely-crowned monarch, W. L. Carlyle, of Calgary, announced that the ram was to be shipped immediately following the close of the show, to the ranch owned by the Prince of Wales, situated 65 miles south of Calgary, he acting as special representative to the lord to the British throne. Mr. Carlyle sold $500 for the ram; which weighed 250 pounds.

In buying the champion, the Prince, he declared, was pursuing the policy he had adopted since buying the ram, namely, to stock it with the best cattle, horses, sheep and swine obtainable.

Official Date Of

Close Of War

January 10, 1920. In Ruling of Winnipeg Judge

Winnipeg.—The first time since the cessation of hostilities a Canadian court has been called upon to declare a day when the war came to a close and this decision was given by Mr. Justice Dwyer, in directing how a trust fund transferred from the 9th (Winnipeg) Battalion, on active service, to trustees here, should be disbursed.

His Lordship declared that as the 9th was a Canadian Battalion, fighting on the western front, and that as war with Germany ceased January 18, 1919, this date should be taken as the time when Canada was at peace with Germany. The fund amounted to $14,000, by the terms of the agreement, was to be handed over to the officer commanding the battalion three years after the war was over.

Cattle Embargo Measure Being Hurried Along At Canada's Request

London.—By a vote of 279 to 27, the House of Commons rejected a motion for the rejection of the Importation of Animals Bill. Premier Bonar Law said that the report stage and the third reading would be taken up this week.

The main criticism in connection with the bill was that the Government was acting rather hurriedly, and that more time was needed to make effective arrangements to ensure a steady supply of stores.

Sir Robert Sanders, Minister of Agriculture, restrained criticism by stating that the Government, in assisting the bill forward, was complying with the wish of the Canadian Government.

The only point now at issue is the question of the application of the regulation, under the bill, to Irish cattle. Ulster men complain that the bill forbids the purchase made in Canada, said there also had been a promise to safeguard the health of stock in Great Britain.

T. P. O'Connor (Liverpool), declared that he came here since it is stated that he came here twenty years ago, Kennedy always insisted upon his being given as stated and the person who reported the death, has done so twenty years ago, Kennedy was baptised by the Rev. William Kennedy, Aged 125, Passes Away At Holden, Alta.

Edmonton.—The death of William Kennedy, of Holden, at the ripe old age of 125 years, has been reported to Donald Smith, registrar of vital statistics as having taken place November 30th. If Kennedy's age at death is correct, not only was he the oldest inhabitant of Canada, but he must have come to Canada when he was over 100 years old since it is stated that he came here twenty years ago.

Kennedy always insisted upon his being given as stated and the person who reported the death, has done so twenty years ago, Kennedy was baptised by the Rev. John Richardson, parish priest of Enniskillen, Ireland, and died at which time his age was given as five years.

Supremacy In Grain Established By Canada At International Show

Chicago.—Canada definitely established its supremacy in grain at the International Livestock Exposition when announcements from the lay and grain show showed that the Dominion had captured the two most important sweepstakes and a host of first prizes and places in other divisions in that department.

The sweepstakes in wheat, probably the class containing the largest entry in the show, was won by R. O. Wyley, of Lacombe, Sask., with a sample of hard red spring wheat. The sweepstakes in oats, another large class, was won by J. W. Biglands, of Lacombe, Alta. First prize in rye, which amounts to the same thing as sweepstakes, was won by J. V. Lucas, of Carleton Place, Ont.

First prize in two-rowed barley was won by N. L. Tallinger, of Chesham, Alta. H. G. L. Strange, of Penn. Alta, took fifth, and Jack Davidson, of Buffalo, Horn, Sask., eighth. A host of other Canadians won prizes and premiums in smaller divisions.

Canada took many more of the events held in the lay and grain show. Most of the winners were from one town, Brooks, Alberta, which supplied Pat Garman, Alex. Garman and Mac Nanning, and citation to win prizes in the alfalfa seed contest, P. K. Pat.

ton to take a premium in the show barley, and a number of other men to places in the divisions and in Alfalfa clover seed and timothy seed.

In the horse show, Albert Lawson, of Burlington, Manitoba, won honors for Canada in the first event, when his horses took both second and third places for non-professional draft horses, geldings or mares, weighing between 2,200 pounds.

"First Prize" entered by the Manitoba Department of Agriculture, was placed as the prize stallion older than four years.

Medallists Best won the championship among fat classes of Galloway steers. He was entered by the University of Alberta.

"Nearly Lost Baby With Croup"

Has Depended on Dr. Chase's Medicines for 25 Years

This letter from Mrs. Thompson gives you some idea of why so many thousands of people depend on Dr. Chase in the hour of sickness.

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has a permanent place in the great majority of Canadian homes because it is the most certain relief from Croup, Bronchitis, Whooping Cough and Asthma.

Mrs. Alex. Thompson, Whila, Alta., writes:—"When my first baby was born, I think she would have died from croup before we could reach a doctor. If it had not been for a neighbor who had a bottle of Dr. Chase's Linseed and Turpentine in the house, this relieved her almost immediately. That was 21 years ago, and Dr. Chase's Medicines have been friends of ours ever since."

Asthma

A Canadian View Of The Solution To The Problem Of The Allied War Debt

In view of the necessity of finding a solution to the problem of the Allied debt, the appended letter from a prominent Canadian financier has special value. Bernard Baruch in a letter to Senator Borah dissected the Halifax note, and made important constructive suggestions, which Mr. Macaulay would further develop.

"Dear Mr. Baruch: Canadian has noted with satisfaction the broadminded views expressed in your widely published letter. We in the Dominion have no direct interest in the Allied debt. We are united by strong friendship, both to the Mother Country and to our neighbor-brother, and can, we think, view the matter impartially. May I briefly discuss the case?"

You frankly agree that such portions of the Allied loans as were expended for munitions and other fighting purposes, were used for the benefit of all, and that the debts may fairly be reduced to the common fund.

When your country declared war you took your place beside the Allies to prosecute the struggle as a joint enterprise. You contributed your own preparation, and during that time the Allies gave to the cause one million lire, besides billions of their own money. You contributed your money, but you did help financially. The claim now that you are only lending while they are giving is contrary to all ideas of co-operation and justice, that it will not stand even a moment's investigation. We are not in dollars worth more than their lire?

During the whole war in actually killed, France lost 2,100,000; Britain, 1,500,000; Italy, 1,000,000; the United States, 50,000; Canada, 52,000. In lives there was no equality of sacrifice, must there also be no equality of finance?

I need not dwell further on these points, for you admit that money loaned for military purposes should be deducted from the so-called debts. Coming from the head of the Government Commission which made the advances, this declaration should carry great weight with the American people. Its general acceptance would be a first step towards a fair solution.

You hold, however, that money applied to purposes not strictly military should be repaid. You also hold that the United States has counter-claims. Among non-military items you list food for Britain's civilians. This food, purchased at inflated prices, was sold much below cost, and the proceeds were at once applied to strictly military purposes. Was it not all therefore a war expenditure? You also suggest that Britain should have transported American troops without charge. Why? The vessels were private property, and their owners had to be reimbursed. Why should Britain pay for their use while they were transporting American troops? American railways were taken under Government control. Should they have carried without charge the munitions purchased by the Allies? Britain, of course gladly furnished the naval squadrons that conveyed the transports.

You make out a better case on another point. Any amount paid to J. P. Morgan & Co. to cover an overdraft of the British Government on April 28, 1917, is in a different category, as it represents expenditures before the United States became one of the associates.

But there is another point. Your advances were limited to covering purchases in the United States, which incidentally benefited your own people, practically the only exception being for Russia. No other nation imposed such a restriction. Was this quite in harmony with full co-operation, and with the wealth and dignity of your country? If a broader view might fairly have been taken, and the restriction had not been imposed, Britain would not have had to continue to finance the domestic requirements of her Allies, and would today owe your Government nothing, for she would have paid for her own American purchases in cash. It then becomes of no importance for what purpose the money was used, and even the Morgan over-draft drops out of sight.

There is still another point. These monies did not leave the United States. They were expended in purchases there at war-time prices. An American writer estimates that apart from the wealth he has brought to the individuals, the United States Government itself received back in excess profits and other taxes over $2,600,000, reducing the actual expenditure to that amount. Should this be ignored?

I heartily agree that if there is to be any just settlement all points must be carefully considered, and among these points I would include the question whether if these debts were collected the United States would have borne a reasonable share of the burden, particularly for the first year, and also the effect of the limitation of your advances. My own impression is that the maximum amount, if any, which an impartial Commission would award as due by Britain, would be the Morgan over-draft of $400,000,000.

Mr. Hoover says that the Allies can pay these sums. This has no bearing on the question whether the money is really owing. That a man can pay a claim does not prove that the claim is just.

The war record of the United States from the time of her entry was a worthy one. Though she could not at once supply men, she did at once supply an effective and efficient army, and when her armies did arrive they won the admiration of the world. Those who now say that your advances were mere money placed in the hands of the war of your country—her crown of glory, by reducing her from a splendid monarchy to a mere money lender, making claims, the justice of which the rest of the world does not admit.

I know and admire the American people. I am sure that when they understand the facts they will insist that their war record should be made worthy of their glorious military record.—T. B. Macaulay, President, New Life Assurance Co. of Canada, Montreal.

A Book Of Canadian Interest

Irish and Canadian Poems, by Michael A. Hargaden

The works of Canadian authors are becoming more and more recognized, not only in Canada, but in other countries. During this book reason it is of interest to quote from a review of "Irish and Canadian Poems" by Michael A. Hargaden, with introduction by George H. Mann. The review signed by "T. B. M. B." appeared in a recent issue of "United Irish and Indian Empire," one of the leading Irish journals. Of the book, it says: "This anthology is an elegant tribute to the value of a friend, living or dead, or a retrospective narrative of his own early school days, the poet's facile and graphic pen strikes a fine chord. Mr. Hargaden is a born poet, full of love, full of poetry, full of sympathy, and his poems abound with freshness and sunshine. The language and the metre used are so simple and easy in flow that even a schoolboy could follow them with pleasure and enjoyment."

The poet pays a handsome tribute to one of his friends, who was killed in France. The book that is strongest may fall in the blast. But a forest will grow from the seeds that it cast; Thus each drop from the breast of this flower of our race Will spring up a soldier to stand in his place.

The natural course of passing away from this world is thus described in "Going Away."

Yet those we leave shall go away; And those they leave shall go; All to the great Eternity

We follow in a row. Trembling, sorrow, and disappointments are the natural phases of human being, and the poet offers a broken blade in his poem, "Broken Blade." In these words:

Perhaps the flowers of heaven are little flowers That here at birth were broken on the ground; Perhaps the hours of heaven are happy hours That here we often sought, but never found.

We have nothing but praise for this beautiful book which is extremely well put out on thick paper, and in clear gold print, and has a large number of glorious reproductions of several famous scenes of Ireland and of Irish and Canadian scenery. It would make an excellent gift.

Typed Radio Messages

Wireless Tests Made With "Teletype" Have Been Successful

Flying naval airplanes will soon be sending their messages to land or ship stations in typewritten form. This remarkable advancement in radio development has just been announced by the Navy Department. It is an actual achievement, fully tested and found of great importance in communication between aircraft and their stations.

The apparatus that makes this form of radio transmission possible consists of a machine much like the commercial typewriter, connected by electricity to a radio transmitting or receiving set. Each key of the typewriter is connected to the radio apparatus in the airplane.

When a letter is struck a radio impulse is flashed from the antenna on the airplane to the receiving station below. On the receiving end is a similar instrument which reproduces the message in typewritten form on a tape.

The instrument has been named the "teletype." It has been in use for the last eight years in connection with land wire telegraphy. But this is the first time it has been applied to wireless. First tests were made at the naval air station at Ancon, D.C. The new system, it is said, will eliminate much of the error in transmitting and receiving that is now experienced in the telephone and telegraph devices. Accuracy is the chief advantage of the teletype. It is said to be nearly as fast as that at which messages can be sent by wire, and may open a vast new field for usefulness.

Presenting Card Did Not Secure Interview For Collector

William Doolittle is not for his nerve, his shortness of temper, and the severity of each. While he was seated at a lonely breakfast in his club one morning, a debt collector broke in, through the drawl of the porter at the door, and presented his bill.

"Sit," said William, glaring at him. "Is this all you know of the usages of decent society? To present a bill to a man breakfasting first? Do you know I could call the servants and have you thrown out? If you wish to talk business, go outside and send in your card."

The collector went out and sent in his card. William picked it up between his thumb and forefinger, adjusted his muscles, and read it. "Tell the gentleman," he said sweetly, "that I am not in"—"Till-lits."

A Wireless Record

White Star Liner Majestic Sent 100 Words a Minute

Radio messages were sent by automatic machinery at a rate of between 80 and 100 words a minute by the White Star liner Majestic to the station of the Radio Corporation of America at Chatham, Mass.

This rate is about four times as fast as ordinary operators can send and receive it, while the greatest speed made by the most expert senders is only a little over 40 words a minute.

The speed is nearly as fast as that at which messages can be sent by wire, and may open a vast new field for usefulness.

Strange Happenings Near Naples

Thousands of Lake Fish Poisoned By Volcanic Gases

A strange thing has just happened near Naples. Thousands of fish suddenly appeared on the surface of Lake Lucerne, twisting and turning about in violent agitation. Then, gradually their movements ceased and they floated dead on the water.

The only explanation that can be offered for this strange happening is that poisonous gases must have invaded the water through vents in the volcanic bed of the lake, and that the unfortunate fish were gassed.

The water is to be tested to see if it has been poisoned, in which case the extensive fisheries carried on in the lake.

Nature has dealt most generously with Canada in respect to her climate. While in the East we have winter weather worthy of the name, with lots of snow, which nowadays proves an attraction to thousands who revel in the bracing winter atmosphere and enjoy our winter sports, or tobogganing, skating, etc., there are many who seek a warmer clime. We have the Canada climate for the last thirty years, while Vancouver is a little different. In the Pacific Northwest, where winter is never experienced. Golf and other outdoor sports may be enjoyed in all winter while both cities have magnificent natural settings, and hundreds of miles of the finest roads in the continent invite motoring. You have the grandeur of mountain scenery, green forests and invigorating breezes from the sea, and all the advantages to be found in a modern metropolis. For Vancouver is one of the finest cities in the world.

Did Not See Sky For Nine Months

British Explorer Says Malaysia Jungle Is Too Dense

Carvel W. Wells, F.R.S.G., British explorer, engineer, and tunneler, gave an interesting address before the Women's Canadian Club, Hamilton, deploring Malaysia, where he has spent seven years in the jungle, when building a railway for the British Government. "His wife, a Canadian girl, was with him."

For nine months they did not get a glimpse of the sky—the density of the jungle prevented. Only a Canadian girl, he declared, could have existed under the conditions. Two weeks were spent in reaching Singapore and nearly seven years in building the railway through the jungle in Bunkah.

Humorous descriptions of the animal, fish, reptile and bird life of the peninsula, in which the speaker spoke most casually of poisonous snakes, insects, scorpions, and other crawling, falling and biting creatures, made the audience alternately shudder and laugh. All houses, the speaker stated, are built with holes in the floor in order that the rain may get the cleansing necessary. Fortunately there is no malaria. The climate was warm, and it was possible to stand in the shade at noon with a thermometer in each hand, one in the shade and the other in the sun, and have them register 82 and 169 degrees Fahrenheit. Although there are over 20,000 white women in the land, marriageable girls are kept locked up. When a young man goes "sweeping," he approaches the father of one of these girls and gets a price on her. Lovely girls, said Mr. Wells, may be had for $5, and flowers for $2. The main reason for the wedding the bride's teeth are filled—a safety first precaution. The marriage takes place in a mosque, and for two years the bride pair live with the bride's mother. By repeating "I divorce thee" three times in succession, a legal divorce may be obtained. Divorces are rare, however, because a divorced man dishonors himself. It is easier to take another wife, and a man may have four.

In the midst of the jungle, which is covered with tropical plants and high branches, trees, which vines grow and tangle, are huge marble rocks, 2,500 feet high. In these are caves, where flying foxes live and swallow bats drive until they are gathered to be sent to China for soup.

First Building to Be Papered

Drawing Room in Kensington Palace Decorated

Kensington Palace appears to have been the first building in England decorated with wallpaper—a form of decoration which, in the opinion of some speakers at the Conference of Master Painters, will shortly become obsolete. William Pyne, the historian of Kensington Palace, relates that Kent, the architect employed by George I. to redecorate the Palace, made a startling change by papering "the King's great drawing room." The effect was much admired, and the new art of paper-hanging, being both cheap and elegant, was generally adopted in preference to the old style velvet cloth hangings.

England Land Of Mystery

American Visitor Does Not Find Conditions As Reported

"You are going to visit the most interesting place in Europe," a wise old American friend of mine remarked to me when I took the Paris train for London.

I had been in non-English-speaking countries for several years. I knew by popular international vote that the English were very polite. That is mystery number one.

Where ARE these impolite people? to live here! On the Channel coast, to be the head of a great hotel? At once an elderly gentleman put on his own hat so that he might give me his cap. Other people, too, proved courteous, such as policemen, railway porters, hotel maids, everyone says, "Thank you" at every turn.

Mystery number two. Where are our SILENT people? Where is the friend reserve for which you hear me call? The old gentleman who lent me his cap talked a great deal to me and invited me to his office—he seemed to be the head of a great banking establishment.

I approach the third mystery with anxiety. Where are those sweet smooth, and cream blonde beauties, and report inform us grow in the British Isles?

Another mystery. Where do all the omnibuses come from? Pleasant as the stars in heaven, winding up and down, back and forth, cheap and quick, a royal chariot for the young, they awaken words. Has a thoughtful Government provided them with chauffeurs, and are they an antidote remedy? Is this why the English are so stout?

Really, England is a land of mystery. Where are our drunken people to whom the American prohibitionists point? I have yet to see one.

Finally, where is your lost and stolen thing which the Bolsheviks advertise so confidently about?—An American, in London Daily Mail.

The FISHING AIR

By Corinne

Pearl and Pimie.

If you read last week's story you will remember that it stopped just as Pearl went to the Fairy of the End-of-the-Sea and who is a cousin of Pimie's was sailing. When she had changed into a fish and who was swimming along beside her in a wonderful under-sea trip, about Tuesday night.

"Well," laughed Pearl, "I personally do not see much of interest, but perhaps if you asked the Toothfish himself, it would have ever so many interesting things to tell you. You know, he added thoughtfully, every one is apt to think that their life, their duties and their troubles are more than interesting to others. Have you noticed that in life?"

"Should say I have," and Pimie really couldn't help grinning. "When wandering around I have often overheard elderly Humans talk of their life, their duties and their troubles as though they were the only people on earth who had troubles. I wonder why people here so much to talk about and compare questions and illnesses. If I were a Human, I would try to always talk of pleasant and happy things; for the more one thinks and talks of happy things, the more happy life seems to be! At least, I have found it so. But tell me, what and who is this Toothfish whom you just passed? It certainly looks like a Tooth!" And the Brownies burst out laughing.

"The only thing about 'Toothfish' that interests me," exclaimed the Fairy, "is that their bodies, when ever so little, have themselves on some neck by an adhesive disk on the front of their chests. This disk soon disappears and the little fish (it is) has to continue its own protection, which generally consists of mixing itself up in its sandy surroundings, or as not to be easily noticed."

"Are they dangerous?"

"When grown," answered the Sea Fairy, "they are supposed to have strong poison fangs, which are almost as deadly as those of snakes. But I have never heard of their doing any damage whatever. Look! out!"

"What's the matter?" demanded the Brownies. "It can't be anything out of the ordinary. What do you mean?"

"Merrill and Pimie have passed swimming for a moment and had lowered themselves down to the sand, shell and plant covered bottom of the ocean."

"Do you mean to say that you do not see those Toothfish as they ramble face themselves?"

"Of course, I don't," Pimie laughed. "If I could there would be no reason for their trying the camouflage game. The reason that I do it is because it works so well; why, even the Tiger in the jungle tries to hide himself amongst the razor striped jungle grass. That much, Pearl dear, even I know."

"Well," laughed Pearl, "as long as you seem to know so much, I feel that I must repeat that the Toothfish are supposed to have poison fangs that are very deadly. I don't want you to get your self mixed up in any trouble. It is always best to be careful where there is any doubt and if one is not quite sure, don't you think so?"

Pimie was swimming along very vigorously.

"I suppose you are right," he answered, after thinking a moment. "Well, let's see what comes across our path next."

Men Who Never Forget

Some Workers In Public Places Have Good Memories

It is stated that an Anglo-Indian lawyer, seated in his club in Pall Mall recently for the first time in 25 years, only to find himself greeted by the hall porter, without a moment's hesitation, with a "Good morning, Mr. N." Well, club hall porters are rather like that. Their recollection of names is marvellous. At one club to which I belong there is a hall porter who watches every member come in and says, "I have a letter for you, sir," or, alternatively, "For you, sir," or, alternatively, "There is nothing for you today, sir." This man also identifies the hat of nearly every member of the club—a happy knack of memory which saves much trouble, for he has only to take a rapid survey of the hats that are hanging up to know exactly who is in the club.

But club servants have not a monopoly of this gift. In a world-famous hairdressing establishment the other day the man who was cutting my hair asked a clerk, "Good morning," at a customer who had just come in. "Good morning," said the customer, "but you don't know who I am."

"Oh, yes, I do, sir," said the man; "you are Mr. —, and the last time you were in here was sometime in April, 1912."

And he was right—From the Over seas Daily Mail.

Takes Great Interest In Sport

W. A. B. Douglas Who Has Been Elected President of the Irish Rugby Football Union

W. A. B. Douglas

A recent issue of "The Saturday Night" has a column article on the sporting record of W. A. B. Douglas, chief passenger clerk to William Johnston, Esq., 1325, from the Belfast, B. Co. Company at Belfast. Mr. Douglas has many friends in Canada who will be glad to learn of his appointment as President of the Northern Branch of the Irish Rugby Football Union. Mr. Douglas played rugby football for years with Knock Club, and was secretary to that body for a long time. After retiring from active football in 1912 he acted as referee in many important games. It was mainly through Mr. Douglas's efforts that Knock R.F.C. erected on their ground a war memorial pavilion at a cost of around $8,000. These grounds adjoin Camp Hill College, where a brother of J. M. Gibson, General Publicity Agent of the Canadian Pacific is Headmaster.

Strange Customs In Africa

How Relations of Bride and Groom Arrange Marriage

In a certain African tribe, when a young man desires a maiden in marriage he utters not a word himself, but sends his relations to arrange the matter for him. These send themselves outside the house of the girl's parents, with their sandals crossed in their hands. Usually they are invited to enter—if not, there's nothing doing. On being asked their business they reply in a phrase which means, literally, "We have come to you about a dog," and then forward in all negotiations with regard to purchase price, etc., nothing but the dog is spoken of.

Where Rain Was Scarce

William Allen White, the Kansas editor, was talking about drought; "one summer during a terrible drought," he said, "a tourist was passing through Arizona. He cut up one night in a town so dried up that even the trees had yellowed and withered. Does it never rain here?" the tourist said to the landlady of the hot, dusty hotel. "Rain?" said the landlady. "Why stranger, there's been no rain here for years. In this town you ain't never learned to swim yet!"

Tombs Discovered In Syria

Have Been Sealed For Over Four Thousand Years

Two tombs about 4,000 years old have been discovered in Syria by the excavations being carried on under the direction of General Gourand, the French High Commissioner, according to the Paris correspondent to the London Times.

The site is established by the discovery in one of them of a jar, a curved sword with a gold handle, a reel of gold on which is engraved the Egyptian "sparrowhawk," a gold scarabaeus ring beautifully carved, and a balia box of obsidian, mounted in gold and bearing the name of Pharaoh Ahmose of the twelfth dynasty.

This is stated to be the oldest inscription discovered in Syria, and proves that commercial relations between Syria, Greece and Egypt were already active 2,000 years before our era. The first recorded conquest of Syria by Egypt was made by Thutmose I. (Eighteenth of the eighteenth dynasty) during the sixteenth century, B.C.

Etiquette From The Book

Instead of the usual boy's adventure book, boys' mother gave him a book of etiquette, and the results were satisfactory until one day his sister, starting to leave the room, found her self violently seized and thrown backward into the coat closet. "You ignorant little beast!" growled the boy. "Don't you know that you should wait till a gentleman opens the door for you?"—Argonaut.
